German-American Status Not Expected to Change

(By The Associated Press)
Washington March 28. It learned definitely to-day that the American government has no knowledge of any development likely to come before Congress convenes which would change the present situation between the United States and Germany. If Germany contemplates any sort of peace move, or has considered abandon ing submarine ruthlessness, or if any other nation has a step in mind deigned to alter the present interna tional status, the government is without information on the subject. Except for information concerning German plots against American interests, it was learned, the public, in a general way, knows as much as the government about everything directly affeeting the present crisis. Concerning German intrigues in this and other countries, the government has much information which, up to the present, it has not thought it wise to make public.

Pacifists Go to Capital To Parade Against War

They propose to have peace advocates from various cities march over Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol, and there seek interviews with Representatives and Senators, to urge the creation of a German-American joint commission to discuss the international differences, and a conference of neutral nations to consider means of ending the war.

The American Peace Society, on the

The American Peace Society, on the other hand, has expressly repudiated all efforts to hamper the President.

"The Advoc of Peace," its official organ, in its issue to-morrow, will say

"We are opposed to war as a mean-of settling international disputes. We recognize, however, that we are living in an ungoverned world. The decision whether the United States shall or shall not enter this war is up to the government, not to the Peace Society."

Dr. Carrel, whose method of treating wounds with a solution of hypochlorite of lime revolutionized war surgery, has already signified his willingness to return to New York and assume direction of the new hospital. Only the permission of the French government, under which he is now working, is necessary to make his decision final. Authorities of the Rockefeller Institute have been given to understand that France, deeply appreciative of the great surgeon's services, will not object to his return to New York at this time. In his work here he will have the coöperation of Dr. Dakin.

Dr. Carrel, although he is a French citizen, won fame while working as a surgeon at the Rockefeller Institute, in this city. He was at Lyons when the war broke out, and immediately began heaving the french Medical Corps, in Belgium. For more than a year he has had his own hospital at Compiègne, France.

The distinctive feature of the Carrel-Dakin method is the use of a solution of hypochlorite of lime under conditions which utilize the disinfecting properties of the chorine and avoid its caustic effects. U. S. Studying Allies' Mistakes At Start of War

Secrets Bared to Help Unprepared America Avoid Similar Blunders

By FLOYD P. GIBBONS

London, March 28,-Perhaps the greatest indication that the realization of the unpreparedness of the United States has been brought home to the Wilson Administration developed here All Branches of Government to-day, when it became known that for the last two months the American State, War, Navy, Treasury, Agricult. ure and Labor departments have been in intimate touch with the correspond ing departments of the Allied nations. Washington to-day has all secret inedness cost the Allies at the hands of the highly organized and superprepared Teuton. Washington now knows how the Allies organized their arms and resources at the last moment, and how the armics were recruited, how the finances were arranged, how the industries were socialized into a national cause, how the tremendous problems of mobilizing equipment, transportation, training and munitioning of the army and navy of the air and the subsca forces were solved.

To do this Great Bratain and her forces were solved.

To do this Great Britain and her silies have bared their wounds to their sister democracy across the seas, and the United States diplomatic service. has for the last two months been examing these wounds, studying the defects that existed in the Allied governments before the war and making notes on remedies and improvements and corrections that the three years of war have brought; in other words, taking full and free advantage of the wonderful opportunity to learn with ut loss of a single man or the expenditure of a sin-gle dollar the lessons which England.

The transportation measures taken in England, in consequence of which English railways are now carrying more men and freight than ever before in their history, will be an important feature of the report. Methods of taking over factories, increasing their output and meeting problems in connection with the treatment of workmen also are receiving careful attention.

Financial measures designed to prevent panics and other troubles are being studied, as well as methods of issuing loans and other war credits.

Among the other problems under consideration is that of internment, in which the embassy has had a large experience in its capacity as representative of various helligerents.
